Surgeon at Findlay Opens Passage from Stomach to Small Intestines

By The Associated Press

FINDLAY O Sept 26 — An eight weeks old boy, Bobby Howard McLeod fought against danger of [illegible] today as he convalesced from the effects of an unusual operation which opened the way for food to pass from his stomach to his small intestine and enable him to complete digestive processes

His father Howard W McLeod said the boy at birth had but an [illegible] chance to live and added that he would summon another physician Dr E E Rezenhaw to aid the surgeon who performed the operation

Dr J [illegible] Marshall the surgeon said the Bobby was born with pyloric stenosis The small intestine at the point of junction with the stomach was only as large as a lead pencil

Dr Marshall said a muscle in the lower end of the stomach was too thick to permit a "valve" between the stomach and intestine to function

In the operation he weakened the muscle to relieve the condition and permit free passage of food into the intestines to be digested further and absorbed in the blood stream.

McLeod said Bobby weighed eight pounds three ounces when he was born July 27 and now weighed seven pounds two ounces. However, his frame was well developed.

Bobby lives in a little wheeled crib covered over and kept at a constant temperature by an electric light bulb. He receives food and medication at regular intervals day and night.

Cincinnati Cleric Denounces Radio Priest's Advocacy of Bullets

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI O Sept 26 Rev Charles E Coughlin studied in Philadelphia today a rebuke from the Most Rev John T McNicholas of the Cincinnati Catholic diocese for his reference to President Roosevelt as anti-God and his advocacy of use of bullets against any upstart dictator

I remember very well how they persecuted Mohammed said the Royal Oak Mich radio priest as he received last night a report of Archbishop McNicholas' comment in which the archbishop said there is no excuse for inciting in the people a spirit of violent rebellion against conditions which do not actually exist and may never exist.

Archbishop McNicholas expressed hope that Fr Coughlin would "retract the bullets assertion and had transgressed bounds if he made the statement attributed to him—that President Roosevelt is anti-God The anti-God statement followed one that Mr Roosevelt says destroy and devastate contrary to Biblical tenets

Knows Term's Meaning

Fr Coughlin knows the meaning of anti-God in its broad acceptation and the definite meaning now attached to it" he said I am making no statement for or against President Roosevelt, for or against the Republican, Democratic or Union parties but I am insisting as a public moral teacher that Fr Coughlin transgressed bounds if he made the statement attributed to him—that President Roosevelt is anti-God"

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Sept 26 Hopes for a peaceful solution of the world's monetary problems rose today in wake of action by France to revalue its currency in terms of gold in cooperation with the United States and England

With the French parliament summoned for an extraordinary session Monday and steps taken to halt the drain of gold from Paris the franc was regarded in financial quarters as on the verge of joining the circle of currency devaluation traceable to the outbreak of the European money crisis more than five years ago

Friendly gestures among the three great monetary powers to tide the franc over its present troubles were received hopefully by many bankers and economists as foreshadowing possibly more decisive moves to curb economic ills attributed to currency maladjustments and unstable exchange rates

There was evident however a disposition to await further details before jumping to conclusions about the long range significance of the announcement of a gentlemen's understanding to forestall economic warfare among the dollar the British pound and the franc

Some had feared devaluation of the franc as the pivot of the so called European gold bloc currencies would start another currency depreciation cycle to obtain trade advantages

Envisions Peace

Contrary to such views was the expressed opinion of Henry Morgenthau Jr secretary of the treasury that the accord would mark the turning point for general peace throughout the world

From this financial observers inferred the treasury head who months ago held out the olive branch for agreement on exchange stabilization was confident some kind of a settlement informal or otherwise could be achieved to smooth out fluctuations of currencies in the interest of world trade and economic stability

They reasoned any progress toward that goal at the same time would tend to promote industrial recovery and help muffle war drums in Europe

SUKKOTH FESTIVAL WILL BE OBSERVED

Marion Jewish Congregation Plans Services Starting Next Wednesday

Sukkoth the Jewish Feast of Booths will be observed by the Marion Congregation of Israel with services beginning next Wednesday night in the temple room in the Marion National bank building.

In Biblical times Sukkoth was an agricultural festival. It was the occasion for Jews to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem there to lay sacrifices on the altar of the temple and to sing hymns of praise and thanksgiving to God for His bounty.

The destruction of the temple and the disappearance of sacrifice as a form of worship brought changes in the observance of the holiday but the spirit of the festival has not changed. Observant Jews still build a Sukkah or small booth in their yards where they eat during this week. It is intended to be a reminder of the time when the Jews lived in such booths during their 40 years of wandering in the desert and of God's goodness to them. The Sukkahs are decorated with fruit and foliage of the fall season to symbolize God's loving kindness. The synagogue too is decorated with fruits and flowers, the palm branch or lulab as it is called in Hebrew, with citron or the ethrog, sprigs of fragrant myrtle and boughs of the willow tree. All these represent the harvest character of the festival.

Sukkoth is also marked in Reform Temples by a ceremony of consecration in which young children are formally inducted into the religious school with emphasis placed upon the thought of God's goodness as manifested in the gifts which the Sukkoth season brings to the world.

Forgetting God

A SERMONETTE

Today's sermonette is a condensation of a sermon written by Rabbi Simon R Cohen and read at the New Years services of the Marion Congregation of Israel ushering in the Jewish holiday season and observance of holy days

It is true that today we stand in the presence of Eternity — every one enters an Eternity. Let at the beginning of each year when my face holds the past and in meditation we go the past and resolve for the future that is needed a moment of real solemn introspection and confession.

The first thought which comes to me in this hour is the thought of the care of God. Has He forgotten me? Am I of so little value that what I do causes no impress upon the affairs of life? Is it possible that my name is not in God's Book of Eternity? I feel humble. The Divine presence oppresses me. Again I ask myself— Am I [illegible] of no value? I hear [illegible] in my heart [illegible] God has forgotten me. Then [illegible] as if the wall of the temple were speaking there [illegible] God who has forgotten you [illegible] you who have forgotten God.

And now Penitence speaks [illegible] year have [illegible] thanking [illegible] for [illegible] of the gifts which God has showered upon you every day? How often have you come close to the belief that there is no God, or if God existed that He took no notice of you or of your fellow men? How often have you entered the House of God and when you entered how often have you listened in bored silence while the prayers were chanted impatiently awaiting the closing hymn that you might return to your trivial worldly things? How often have you ceased to enter the House of God imagining that you had outgrown such childish things, confirmed in your arrogance that there is no God?

How smug and self-satisfied you became when you achieved a little success in the world because you had carved a place for yourself and could call it your own? This little thing turned your head when others listened to your vanity and often silently nodded their heads in affirmation. You were confirmed in your assurance that everything had been established; there was no more mystery in existence; man no longer needed to bend his energies to the solution of the problem of life.

Thus does Penitence speak to my heart and whatever of the spirit of rebellion I may have felt under the spell of selfishness all this fades before the compelling admonition of the messenger of God and I am humble and contrite for Penitence speaks the truth. Indeed I had forgotten God as I enjoyed the very necessities of life.

The gifts had become so common, so plentiful, so freely given to all that I had taken them for granted. The [illegible] the air the sky the infinite heavens, the expanse of sea and [illegible] the bright clouds scudding across the sky bringing the refreshing and healing rain. The [illegible] in the firmament that [illegible] the refreshment of power had all come and gone unnoticed [illegible] Yet all these things are God's who gave them to me in unmeasured abundance. And I had forgotten how much of my well being and happiness depended upon their continuance. I had come to hold in light esteem God's place in the economy of the world. I had listened in admiring silence as the masters of the mind enlarged upon [illegible] scientific achievements of the human race. How glibly the experts talked about the mastery of the forces of nature, provision of future dangers to humanity, ability to meet and control future eventualities. [illegible] Science had so provided that intelligence and machinery would never again permit want or scarcity anywhere. Thus spake the pride of men. And now [illegible] nature and artifice had combined to give the world a too generous supply of material gifts, men began to regulate supply lest over-sale might clog the avenues of business. I assented in admiring silence.

But now I am compelled to pause. Our best minds have failed us. Science has not spoken the final word concerning the mysteries of life. Our leaders as well as we ourselves have become confused, panic stricken. God has again taken His place in the picture to confound us. Drouth, storm, flood, earthquake, war and rumors of war disturb our self assurance. Even the scientist now confesses: Surely there is a God.

I am conscious of my own littleness as I measure myself against Eternity. I am a breath, a span, and God is above time and things.

May strife and strife cease among men; may the clash of arms and the sound of war drums be silenced and anthems ringing Peace on Earth take the place of battle hymns. For Thou are a God of Peace.

Let Thy blessings rest upon Humanity and though we would pray for prosperity and happiness among men in these days of stress we ask that courage and strength be vouchsafed to all men that they may safely pass through the difficulties which Thou hast placed before them. AMEN

Schaffner-Queen Co. Is One of Oldest Funeral Homes in Ohio

The grounds as well as the building are commodious providing ample space for parking cars in such a manner that at funerals the family and friends are placed in their machines quietly and without disturbance from traffic on the street.

Many persons do not realize the many services a funeral home can provide. There are a score of details in connection with a death and funeral service that the director can care for such as executing the legal requirements necessary, arranging the details of the services, the minister, singers and cemetery preparations. All these things the Schaffner-Queen home does as a matter of course. In years gone by many Marion families have come to appreciate the many extra services the Schaffner-Queen company provides as a matter of course.

The chapel when not in use for funeral services takes on the appearance of a living room yet when occasion demands can quickly be converted into a service room with seating facilities for more than 100 persons. It provides more space than a private residence yet is more intimate than a church auditorium. It offers at no extra charge a dignified and beautiful surrounding in which the last rites may be administered. Adjoining the chapel is a family room where members of the family may hear the services away from all intrusion.

Preparation Room

In the preparation room the Schaffner-Queen Co has provided modern and complete facilities for this work. The most sanitary conditions prevail and the scientific process of embalming is carried out in the most minute detail. All work is done by experienced embalmers and a lady assistant.

Quiet and cheerful slumber rooms are provided and where overnight service is requested 24 hour care is always maintained.

In the matter of choosing a burial couch the Schaffner-Queen Co has a wide range of selection and the cost of a service depends upon the desire of the person making the arrangements.

The company also maintains 24 hour ambulance service and is ready on a moment's notice to answer emergency calls. Ambulance equipment is modern and used for no other purpose.

The present management of the company rests in the hands of Frank Schaffner president, Wilfred Schaffner vice president and Harold Denzer manager.

ALL TYPES OF WORK HANDLED

Firm Equipped To Handle Any Job No Matter How Large or How Small

A thorough knowledge of the ... of ... ability to ... work ... attractive ... has made the Landon Decorating Co one of the leading ... firms in Marion. The firm consisting of Ralph Landon and George Landon Jr has its headquarters at 137 Sharp ... and may be reached on the telephone at numbers 6066 and 6097.

Ralph Landon has been in the decorating business for 17 years and George Landon 15 years. Both are thoroughly experienced. Before entering business in Marion Ralph worked for a number of years in Toledo, Detroit and Cleveland. In that time his work consisted of decorating a number of churches and other large buildings in those cities.

Any Kind of Work

The firm is equipped to do any kind of decorating including paper hanging and maintains sufficient equipment to take any kind of a job and push it through to completion as rapidly as good workmanship will permit. During the summer months the Landons have employed as many as seven decorators to keep up with their work and keep it moving so that there will be no delays.

The Landon firm is in a position to do special decorating jobs such as antique effect in woodwork and stippling walls and other designs to produce a modernistic effect.

Years of experience and a study of colors enables the Landons to devise attractive and satisfying color schemes. They also have connections with a leading firm of interior decorators in New York City which enables them to have color schemes worked out for any room in a private home or public building. This service is without charge and entails no obligation on persons asking it.

Mix Own Paint

For the most part the Landons mix their own materials using the best lead oil and other ingredients obtainable. They work on the principle that no job is too small or none too large.

One of the larger jobs recently completed is the redecorating of the Elks lodgeroom here. The work consisted of decorating the walls and ceiling, refinishing the furniture and sanding and refinishing the floor for dancing.

On this job lead with a special mixing oil was used that makes a semi flat finish that washes easily. The same effect is recommended for homes especially where stipple work is desired.

"STOKOL" STOKER EASY ON FUEL PILE

Machine Burns Less Coal and Uses Less Costly Product; Sold by Hunt Co.

"Automatic heat at its very best" is the slogan used by the makers of the Stokol coal stokers for furnaces for either domestic or commercial use. The Stokol stoker is handled in Marion by the Millard Hunt Co of North Prospect street.

Officials of the Schwitzer-Cummins Co of Indianapolis Ind., makers of the Stokol machine, point out that the stoker's controls are so accurate and so complete as to relieve members of the family of the responsibility for healthful heat in the home. Room temperatures and the amount of coal burned are accurately regulated as is the air supply to accomplish complete combustion.

An automatic safety device—the limit control insures against over heating the furnace or boiler. The Stokostat prevents the fire from going out in mild weather. The stokolarm cuts out the motor, stops the stoker and signals a warning of any undue interruption in operation.

Property owners who use the Stokol don't have to worry about fuel bills. The Stokol actually saves fuel and the kind of coal used costs less per ton.

Between 15 and 50 calls are received every night by the ... 61 stations of London's fire brigade.

Life of Paint Depends On Quality of First Coat

The painting of the interior woodwork of a house while not as important to the soundness of the structure as the exterior paint is nevertheless important for several reasons and should receive the greatest attention.

In all painting work it must be remembered that the first coat is the one on which all the others depend for their lasting qualities. If the undercoat gives way all the others give way with it. So special attention must be given to that first coat. To begin with the wood must be perfectly dry. Paint will not stick to a damp surface and neglect of this precaution will mean that the time and money spent upon the painting are wasted.

The number of coats to go on over the first or primary coat and how they are treated is largely a question of the owner's pocketbook. Three coats will cover and make a presentable job but five coats with each coat rubbed down with fine sandpaper before the next coat is applied will make an especially fine job. But this takes time and must be done by experts and it costs considerably more.

The final finish is a matter of taste. Some like a high gloss, some a satin finish and some a dull flat finish. If a high gloss is desired enamel should be used. In applying enamel there should be at least two coats of flat paint applied first and then the enamel. This may be applied in one coat although two coats make a better job. Here again enters Old Mr Economic Factor. If a velvet finish is wanted enamel should be used and it may be a prepared egg shell enamel or glossy enamel may be rubbed down with powdered pumice stone until the desired finish is obtained. Where a flat finish is sought flat paints should be used for all coats.

August Traffic Mishaps Kill 82 And Injure 914

A greater number of accidents on state highways outside municipalities was reported for August than for any other month during the last three years, Highway Director John Jaster Jr announced today.

In the 970 automobile accidents reported to the traffic division of the state highway department 82 persons were killed and 914 were injured.

The number killed, Highway Director Jaster pointed out, was exceeded only by the month of October 1931 while the number injured was the highest since the Ohio department of highways began to keep records of traffic mishaps on state highways outside municipalities three years ago.

Of the 82 persons killed last month 58 were men and 24 were women. Of the 914 persons injured 551 were men and 363 were women.

Pedestrians killed numbered 10 while 25 pedestrians were injured.

On the basis of the August figures Highway Director Jaster predicted an all time high in motor accidents for Ohio in 1936 unless the motorists of the state take to heart the admonition to—

MARION BILLS HAROLD LLOYD

"The Cat's Paw" Made from Kelland Story Here Sunday Monday

Harold Lloyd's picture "The Cat's Paw" made from Clarence [illegible] Kelland's novel of the [illegible] will be returned to the Marion Sunday and Monday for [illegible] on a bill with a Bob Steele western "Brand of the Outlaws"

Late reports from Hollywood are that Lloyd has begun preliminary preparations for another [illegible] to be released early in the year

"The Cat's Paw" marked Lloyd's departure from [illegible] comedies [illegible] story characterization and [illegible] his fans liked the change. Lloyd no longer plays the adolescent youth nor the sophisticate but the [illegible] [illegible] the character he portrays. In "The Cat's Paw" he is seen as the son of an American missionary in China who has spent 20 of his 27 years abroad at his father's post in the interior steeped with the ancient Chinese wisdom but lacking in knowledge of the ways of the hustling American city in which he finds himself after the story opens. His naivety entangles him in the thick of a political campaign from which he emerges mayor—much to the surprise and humiliation of the politicians—and sets out on a clean up drive that lands him into a score of [illegible] situations. Una Merkel is his leading woman and other important roles are taken by George Barbier, Nat Pendleton, Alan Dinehart, Grant Mitchell and Grace Bradley

Lewis Stone, veteran stage and screen favorite, heads the cast of "Don't Turn 'em Loose," the Tuesday and Wednesday return offering on a double bill with "Phantom Patrol," a Kermit Maynard western made from a James Oliver Curwood story. The Stone picture deals with paroled prisoners and parole boards and it reaches dramatic power as it sweeps along. Bruce Cabot, a slippery criminal released from the pen after duping a parole board into believing that he will go straight, immediately returns to depredation and murder. In the eyes of his unsuspecting family, a typical American group in a small town, he is a model young citizen until in a gripping climax he is killed

Two good pictures, a comedy "F Man" with Jack Haley, Grace Bradley and William Frawley and "The Cowboy Millionaire" starring George O'Brien, will be returned for showings Thursday through Saturday. "An F Man" in the picture of that title is a gentleman who wants to be a G Man but can't quite make the grade. Jack Haley, innocent faced comedian, plays the title role in this comedy. Adrienne Marden makes her movie debut opposite Haley. Evalyn Bostock is O'Brien's leading woman in "The Cowboy Millionaire," in which the star portrays a cowboy who experiences heartbreak and struggle both in Arizona and London in attempting to retrieve a lost love and a lost fortune

TENSE SCENE IN PICTURE AT PALACE

Above is a tense scene from "The General Died at Dawn," the picture to be held at the Palace Sunday through Wednesday. Given the choice of sharing the billing place of a firing squad or [illegible] mercy or facing a firing squad, Madeleine Carroll and Gary Cooper are imprisoned with two [illegible] men in the dining room of a Chinese warlord's junk [illegible]

Cooper Film At Palace Awaited by Screen Fans

"The General Died at Dawn" Opens Week With James Fennimore Cooper Story Closing.

Motion picture fans who keep an ear to the ground as to what is going on in the production of the latest pictures have been waiting with interest. "The General Died at Dawn," the picture which will be at the Palace Sunday through Wednesday. Gary Cooper and Madeleine Carroll play the leading roles

The picture is regarded as important because it is the first screen work by Clifford Odets who has been termed the greatest genius of the American theater. His plays have caused a stir on Broadway and his first picture is on a favorite theme, the rights of the people against oppression. Odets wrote "Awake and Sing," "Till the Day I Die" and "Waiting for Lefty"

Lewis Milestone, who directed "All Quiet on the Western Front," was given the directorial assignment

Following "The General Died at Dawn" will be "Murder with Pictures" on Thursday and on Friday and Saturday the film version of the James Fenimore Cooper classic "The Last of the Mohicans"

Odets wrote "The General Died at Dawn" to prove a belief of his that pictures can give people a sense of problems and a higher perception of life without being gloomy or bitter

Battle Against Oppression

The awakening of China's teeming millions to battle against the age old oppression is the basis of a romance of intrigue and adventure

With Cooper as a dashing soldier of fortune who links his fate with the oppressed and with beautiful Miss Carroll as the woman whose charms are used by a scheming war lord to destroy him, the story was based on factual background

Years ago Dudley Digges and J W Kerrigan played together with the famous Abbey Players in Ireland. They appear together again in the Odets picture

One reviewer wrote "The thoroughly splendid and natural performance that fans have learned to expect from Gary Cooper and

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Sept. 27

Sunday's Horoscope is a rather propitious one, particularly prospering for intellectual and cultural vocations and avocations.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and progressive year, despite some trivial vexations in employment. There is augury of excellent conditions for all pertaining to writing and publishing as well as speculative enterprises.

A child born on this day may be versatile, intellectual, industrious and dependable, winning prestige and popularity with important personages and elders.

For Monday, Sept. 28

Monday's Astrological forecast is a very interesting one according to the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. While unusual activity and possible excitement may prevail in the realm of the social, artistic, domestic and romantic life, there is presage of great pleasure and gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of high tension and great pleasure in the private domestic affections and social life, but do not mar such gratifications by tempestuous, reckless or passionate words and deeds.

A child born on this day may have a kindly and lowly nature despite urges to impetuosity, strife, hurtful speech and perhaps unwise personal indulgences.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

Copyright, 1936, Hugh Clevely

SYNOPSIS: Terence Mahony has had a busy night. Since nine o'clock he has rescued two girls from Ambrose Lowndes' gang of kidnapers: Elsa Little, the former star, and Ruth Fraser, wealthy young sportswoman and aviatrix. Unfortunately, Terence managed to make himself a suspect in the murder of Elsa's uncle when he returned her to her home. Just now he is asking Ruth about her experience, especially as to whether she had been drugged by the gang.

CHAPTER TWELVE
It's Good Bye

Y[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] queen [illegible] when [illegible] depressed and [illegible]

I was [illegible] about a day [illegible] desperate [illegible] day before yesterday. When [illegible] through me [illegible] the head as [illegible] a chair. It knocked him unconscious.

I was brought here [illegible] and [illegible] Then [illegible] coming [illegible] I [illegible] him [illegible] the key and [illegible] The [illegible] two [illegible] and shouted a lot, but the window was [illegible] I [illegible] was [illegible] the door [illegible] through it and [illegible] I [illegible] killed him.

After that [illegible] but every [illegible] and then they came and threatened me with the most horrible things if I wouldn't let them in and [illegible] me a [illegible] time if I would. I think what they really meant to do when they found they couldn't get in was to starve me out.

She paused.

"They'd have done it, too, if you hadn't turned up. I was [illegible] thing to me that I'd give anything for a chop or even a slice of ice pudding. I'm terribly grateful to you really."

The child not only had some pluck, reflected Mahony. During his wanderings about the world he had known many women, but none who would have been capable of holding her own against a [illegible] of toughs as this girl had done.

"I wonder what happened to Billy Ross," she went on. "Did they get him too?"

"Yes," answered Mahony. "But not when they got you. Ross was smashed up in a motor accident yesterday. If he lives, which is very doubtful, he'll be a helpless cripple for the rest of his life."

He paused.

"You say you're grateful to me," he continued. "Then I can ask you a favor. You'll probably have to tell all that's happened to your parents and the police. You can't tell them my name because you don't know it, but I'd be very grateful if you won't describe me too accurately to them. And I'd like you to leave out Ross' name altogether. He was partly responsible for the fact that you were kidnaped. But he can't be punished any more than he has been punished. If his name is dragged in the mud his parents will be the only people to suffer. I want to prevent that. And that kidnaping gang won't get away with it. I'll deal with them all right."

* * *

"I bet you'll deal with them," she said. "I won't say anything about Billy Ross. If I tell my guardian that I got into a taxi and a man jumped in with me and chloroformed me, that ought to do, oughtn't it? Anyway, I don't suppose he'll want a lot of police fussing around. He hates a lot of fuss and scandal."

"That story ought to be all right," agreed Mahony. "But mind you stick to it."

"I'll stick to it," she promised. "But won't you tell me who you are?"

"No," answered Mahony.

By this time they were passing through Hampstead, and in a few minutes they drew up outside the house in Upper Brook Street, Mayfair, where Mr. Lee Ramsden, Ruth's guardian, lived. She got out of the car and stood for a moment at the edge of the pavement, looking rather wistfully at Mahony.

"Shan't we ever meet again?" she asked.

"Who am I that I should prophesy?" asked Mahony.

"Don't you want to see me again?" she persisted. "It's a bit impolite, you know, to rescue a girl from a lot of villains and then walk lightly out of her life just like that."

Mahony grinned. He liked her. In ordinary circumstances he would have been glad to meet her again.

[illegible] Mahony [illegible] Ruth [illegible] [illegible] had [illegible] [illegible] she said [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a man [illegible] his [illegible] at [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] "Miss Ruth [illegible]" [illegible] "What is it, Mullins?"

The speaker began to descend the stairs into the hall. He was a tall, well-made man of between fifty and sixty, with the air about him of one accustomed to command.

His features were handsome and well [illegible]. His white hair waved back from a broad intelligent forehead. His eyes were blue and stern, with a hint of [illegible] in their cool glance. His nose was Roman, lending a touch of severity to his face. His mouth and chin were well shaped and determined.

One ugly feature he had which was not noticed by the casual observer: his hands. They were very broad in the palms, with short, ugly, stumpy fingers varying little in length. A distinguished criminologist had once laughingly told Lee Ramsden that he had the hands of a man of [illegible] and implacable—the hands of a killer. Lee Ramsden had merely laughed.

Halfway down the stairs, catching sight of Ruth in the hall, he stopped short with the air of a man who has received a sudden shock. In a moment he recovered himself and hurried on down the stairs.

"Ruth, my dear child! Where have you sprung from?" he exclaimed. "We thought you'd been kidnaped. Your aunt came round and made an awful fuss. Really, we've been worried to death about you."

"I've been a bit worried about myself," answered Ruth. "But I'm not going to talk till I'd had some food. I'm almost dying of starvation."

She also wanted to get quite clear in her mind the story she was going to tell. Hot soup was brought into the dining room, and when she had drunk it Ruth related the story she had arranged with Mahony. Her guardian listened attentively until she had finished. Then he shook his head slightly and smiled.

"It's a good story, my dear, an excellent story—in fact it's been one of my favorite stories ever since I first read it as a boy," he commented, "but it won't do. Won't you tell me where you've really been?"

"But I've told you," she protested. "I got into a taxi and a man got in with me and chloroformed me. Then I was taken to a house somewhere outside London. I don't know where because it was dark and I didn't pay much attention on the way back."

"And a gallant stranger dashed single handed into the house and rescued you from the sinister trio and brought you safely home," observed Lee Ramsden. He shrugged his shoulders slightly.

"You don't know who kidnaped you. You don't know where you were taken. You don't know who your rescuer was," he continued in a ironic tone. "My dear, what [illegible] the police when [illegible] been [illegible] [illegible] believe you."

"[illegible] then?" asked [illegible]

Lee Ramsden gives Ruth another story to tell Monday.

Madge Summons Nurse and Uncle to Room Where Wounded Marauder Is Confined

I STRUGGLED [illegible] a good [illegible] as I went down the hall [illegible] request that I [illegible] the nurse and my [illegible] uncle, Chester Spencer, who was [illegible] his [illegible]

[illegible] though I gave no [illegible] either [illegible] the room or [illegible] [illegible] selected for this [illegible]

Miss Whitlock was [illegible] Aside from respect for her efficiency and liking for her pleasant personality she did not matter [illegible] me one way or another. Whether I summoned her or left [illegible] to my father's [illegible] was a matter of indifference [illegible]

But facing a second [illegible] with my father's twin brother [illegible] I had not [illegible] for the first time [illegible] a few minutes before was something else again. I was glad [illegible] he [illegible] given me five minutes for bringing [illegible] and the [illegible] back with me, and I purposely wasted two of them in standing by a window before finally going to the familiar door of my father's room and knocking.

Miss Whitlock came to the door and when my uncle, sitting at ease in my father's favorite arm chair, saw me standing in the doorway he rose quickly and advanced a step toward me. I came inside the room before speaking, and gestured to Miss Whitlock to close the door.

"As you know"—I looked at my uncle—"there is a wounded man in my husband's room. They need you, Miss Whitlock, to attend to him, and my husband and Mr. Underwood think that you, Uncle Chester, should be given an opportunity to look at the man and listen to him. They are blindfolding the man before you come in."

"A wise precaution," my uncle commented, and I wondered if I imagined that his lips were again twitching with amusement.

"And I do not think they wish him to hear your voice," I went on.

"If there be an oyster in the offing he will gasp with envy when he contemplates me," my uncle said solemnly, and to my annoyance I found the corners of my own mouth involuntarily quirking.

I turned away abruptly, but with the annoying realization that I had not moved quickly enough to escape my uncle's observation of my reluctant amusement.

"Thank you," he said meaningly, and I saw Miss Whitlock look quickly at him in patent bewilderment, but the next instant in her professional mask.

Everything Is Ready

"I shall need—" the nurse began, but I interrupted her quickly.

"You will find everything ready for you in the room," I said, "except hot water, and the maid is bringing that up as soon as it is ready."

"That is fine," she said in relief, and my uncle spoke again.

"[illegible] that everything is always [illegible] in perfect order when Niece Margaret is the [illegible]," he said, and I chided [illegible] the insane impulse to [illegible] every time he used the "Niece Margaret" [illegible] he patently had [illegible] by which he [illegible] addresses me.

With my hand on the door knob, I turned and faced him.

"Don't you think," I said, trying to keep my voice respectful, "that it would be wiser if you simply addressed me as Margaret as my father is in the habit of doing? There is always the possibility that some [illegible] might be within hearing."

He stiffened and drew himself up a little [illegible]

"I think, my dear," he said coldly, "that you may trust my discretion."

Harding Reserves Win Season's Opener At Mansfield

SECOND HALF RALLY BRINGS 13-6 VICTORY; SCORE ON PASSES

Game Marks Introduction of Inter-City Contests for Junior Varsity Groups

After trailing 6 to 0 at half time the Harding High school reserve football team put on the steam in the final half and scored a 13 to 6 victory over the Mansfield High reserves on the latter's home field yesterday afternoon

The game marked the season's opener for the junior varsity gridders at Harding, who this year for the first time will play games at home and abroad with other reserve teams in this district

Both Harding touchdowns came as the result of passes On the first the oval was received over the goal line by Roberts and Clark received the second on the 15 yard line and crossed the goal untouched Carlos Frazier left half back and a brother of Rex Frazier who starred on the Harding varsity grid team last season hurled both of the passes which resulted in the scores

The Marion team was outplayed during the first period but returned in the second half to give an excellent display of well played football With the line holding the opposition for only small gains and the entire team displaying renewed stamina and zip the team turned in a brilliant last half

Mansfield's lone touchdown came in the opening minutes of the second period after a series of end runs in the previous quarter had placed the ball on Harding's three yard line The try for placement was wide of the posts After an exchange of punts in midfield at the start of the third quarter McConnell Marion left end recovered a Mansfield fumble

An end run by Bumgartner netted 15 yards to place the oval on Mansfield 15 yard line Zeisler advanced the ball in a series of line bucks before Frazier hurled the ball over the goal line to Roberts Clark's placement was partially blocked and the try for extra point failed

Another recovered fumble gave Harding its scoring opportunity in the final period Martin right tackle scooped up the ball after the opposition fumbled in scrimmage as the result of a hard tackle Frazier lugged the ball on a off tackle play for a first down to Mansfield 25 yard line On the following play the ends criss crossed down the field and Roberts received Frazier's pass on the 15 yard line to score untouched McConnell's kick for the extra point was good

Coach Bill Williams who directs the destinies of the sophomores took a squad of 26 players to Mansfield yesterday Sixteen of them saw action in the game Marion's starting lineup was McConnell and Clark ends Baker and Martin tackles Kemmerley and Gracely, guards Millen, center Frazier and Bumgartner half backs, Zeisler fullback and Roberts quarterback Substitutions were Smith for Clark Shackelford for Martin McGinnis for McConnell Crabtree for Frazier Jennings for Bumgartner

SINGLE WINGBACK. QUARTERBACK ROVES FROM TACKLE TO TACKLE

[illegible] of a series [illegible] prepared by the coach of [illegible] with [illegible]

FROM the Carlisle Indians tandem of the early 1900's to the present day single wingback football formation is a long jump but the two are related in a direct line of descent

Glenn Scobey Warner probably didn't visualize the far reaching effects when he broke away from the old T formation with three of the backs standing shoulder-to-shoulder but see what we have today Probably more coaches use the wingback lineup or variations of it than any other so called system

The original Carlisle Indian tandem formed a backfield line almost at a 15 degree angle from the front line From that has evolved the current single and double wing back with unbalanced line such as Stanford uses puts three men in position to receive the ball from center The quarterback roves from tackle to tackle on either a left or right strong side One of the advantages of this formation is it minimizes the time in which the defense can get set

Giants Match Defense With Yankees' Speed, Hitting Power

(This is the second of a series of stories on World Series prospects)

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK Sept 26—One of the main advantages to be derived by the New York Giants from the fact they finally have clinched the National league pennant is that they can give the ancient underpinning of those two infield stalwarts Manager Bill Terry and Capt Travis Jackson a much needed rest

Upon the ability of these two veterans and survivors of the McGraw era to stand the series gaff without cracking up depends much of the hopes the Giants hold of overthrowing their Yankee neighbors

Jackson after nearly two seasons of inactivity because of a pair of bad knees started a wonderful come back by jumping into the Giant lineup for the 1933 World Series Terry has been hobbling through this season on one leg so to speak

Flanking Dick Bartell and Burgess Whitehead probably the best double play combination in either major league Terry and Jackson give the Giants a defensive edge over the Yankee infield The question is whether that will be the payoff The Yankees have a clear margin of superiority in speed and hitting power in the combination consisting of Red Rolfe Frankie Crosetti Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig

Three of the four Giant infield regulars have better fielding records than their rivals whereas three of the four Yankee inner workers enjoy a decided edge in stickwork The Yankee infielders have driven in more than 400 runs The Giants on the other hand have a margin in the double play department

Gehrig has it all over Terry on the year's playing record and enters the fray with a World Series hitting mark of 429 to his credit but the crippled Giant manager might rise to greater heights for a short engagement Even with one bad knee Terry overshadows the Yankee iron man as a craftsman around first base

Similarly the wily Lazzeri one of the smartest players in the game might produce more effective results under pressure than the speedier flashier Burgess Whitehead who plugged a big gap for the Giants at second base all season

Crosetti and Bartell both have moments of shortstopping brilliance Frankie has driven in more runs but Dick has handled more assists

Dartmouth's gift to the majors Robert (Red) Rolfe is on the way up while his third basing rival Jackson is nearing the end of his career

The Giants have more and better reserves Leslie is no Terry but he carries a batting wallop Eddie Mayo and the veteran Mark Koenig are other Giant replacements The Yankees have only one experienced infield substitute Jack Saltzgaver

Gov Landon on Tariff

It was an unpleasant [illegible] front[ed] those who [illegible] because they must find fault with Gov. Landon [illegible] their usual [illegible] when he [illegible] speaking at Minneapolis Thursday night.

The governor's [illegible] was a Republican tariff statement that indicated Democrats would find in it absolutely nothing with which they could agree, not that Democrats really have different convictions about protection but because traditionally they feel they must not agree with Republicans.

However any Democrat who starts to disagree arbitrarily with Gov. Landon's Minneapolis tariff statements is going to end up in a corner. For essentially this is what the Republican candidate had to say about tariff:

He believes the Democrats are right in insisting on the evils of isolation and the blessings of reciprocity. But he does not believe the Roosevelt administration has done away with the evils of isolation or has taken advantage of the blessings of reciprocity. In short, as in so many other things, the new deal has shown itself weak on administration. It has been long on promise, short on performance.

In defense new dealers and their sympathizers probably will find nothing more to say than that there hasn't been enough time yet to prove what the present administration can do. That of course is a very old complaint of politicians. They never have quite enough time. They always need a second term to finish what they didn't do in the first term. The excuse coming from the Roosevelt administration doesn't carry much weight.

The hard fact is that the new deal, with more freedom to act than probably will be found constitutional if its tariff powers ever come to trial, has not been able to justify its confused theories of foreign trade. Gov. Landon demands that tariff policy be based on common sense and practical truth. Sensible Democrats can't very well disagree.

One Man's Opinion

Lloyd George, that dynamic Welshman who used to symbolize British politics for most Americans, has completed the fifth volume of his memoirs. In it, according to news reports, he makes a scathing denunciation of Gen. John J. Pershing and of the whole American World war machine. Chiefly he indicts the A. E. F. commander for his stubborn fight to keep his divisions intact instead of having them incorporated in the allied armies. In addition the war time premier declares large numbers of our troops in the Argonne sector were insufficiently fed and our handling of armament shipments was greatly at fault.

Most Americans will gain little consolation from the knowledge that Lloyd George lashes British army leaders with the same whip. Nor will the sting be lessened by the admission that some of his criticisms are justified. Probably our war machine was hastily and inefficiently mobilized, possibly adequate provisions were not always made for supplying the fighting forces with their needs, very likely it is a verifiable fact that half the airplanes used by American aviators were of French or British make.

When these things have been said the fact remains that the major part of the Georgian's attack is directed against what in one man's opinion was an error in judgment upon the part of Gen. Pershing. In firing back at the critical Welshman Gen. Hugh Johnson may not be wholly right when he says Mr. Lloyd George himself was involved in a conspiracy to have Gen. Pershing supplanted by Gen. Peyton March so that American soldiers might be treated as cannon fodder by the British and French. In fact the cracking down general seems to have cracked down with too much of a dramatic flourish—but his is another point of view.

If [illegible] could agree, military tacticians might [illegible] the controversy objectively. Until [illegible] Lloyd George's attack must [illegible] taken as one man's opinion—and [illegible] gracious opinion [illegible].

"The Right Of Self Defense"

The [illegible] highest of the [illegible] is a [illegible] the [illegible] who [illegible] to know what is going on [illegible] can't quite understand it all.

With this point of view in mind it will be noted that three Japanese marines were shot [illegible] Chinese gunmen. One of the [illegible] brings the [illegible] fatalities within the last month up to a total of five. The Japanese have replied [illegible] by declaring martial law over a [illegible] of the international settlement [illegible] Shanghai [illegible] rejecting protests against the unwarranted invasion of foreign territory [illegible] a bad [illegible] failure of [illegible]

Of course Japan [illegible] is an old [illegible] now is the [illegible] had the [illegible] it so. [illegible] right [illegible] to China [illegible] the [illegible] the city [illegible] order [illegible] properly [illegible] property [illegible] in [illegible] call [illegible] refit [illegible]

[illegible] with [illegible] other [illegible] and [illegible] men [illegible] engaged [illegible] rights [illegible] It could [illegible]

Education

The [illegible] drive for [illegible] education [illegible] the same time [illegible] the United States [illegible] job as it should be done.

Unfortunately instruction [illegible] reading, writing and arithmetic isn't enough. Men must be taught how to think as well as how to read and write. No republic can survive or [illegible] intelligence too.

Americans, for instance, must be well grounded in knowledge of their country, of their political theory and system and of the social and economic philosophy underlying the system. They must not only know the facts but they must understand what the facts mean in their relation to each other.

In 1936 it is desirable that citizens of the United States be able to comprehend what is entailed in the issue of collectivism vs. individualism, that they be eager to discuss it and to hear it discussed. Unfortunately it is true that this is not the case. It is a bad omen for the time when a showdown on the direction America will make a final decision necessary.

There is a possibility that Americans may let themselves be marshaled in favor of some alien philosophy of government without understanding what they are doing. If and when there is a crisis in the nation's political affairs, the direction the people will take depends wholly on their mass intelligence, i.e., their ability to keep their heads when confused leadership is distracting them.

Only a few Americans would think of abandoning the philosophy of individualism and the political system which made their country great and has helped to keep it great. There is no important amount of support for changing the basis of government in the United States from regulated individualism to collectivism.

Yet it can not be denied that apostles of collectivism have a large following. Furthermore it is painfully evident that to a large extent the following is composed of persons inadequately capable of appreciating their heritage of political liberty that they are willing to sell it for the first bauble dangled in front of them by a political sharpster.

Here is evidence of a failure of education—not of instruction but of inspiration. For 150 years the world has watched the United States to see whether or not a liberal theory of free government could survive. There is a possibility their verdict will be unfavorable for no better reason than the failure of Americans to make intelligent comparisons of their political condition with that of other people.

There still is time to raise a bulwark of belief and understanding against the forces which threaten liberty. The crisis is approaching, but the new deal is only the threat of regimentation, not the real thing. Americans must be encouraged to understand what it is about their form of government which is distinctly and worth saving. They must be shown how to save it—not by force, not by the repetition of doctrine, but by intelligently challenging the substitutes proposed to replace it.

Matters of Opinion

If Hitler intends to resign as German chancellor, if Josef Stalin really is sick, if the trouble in Spain doesn't clear up and if the Republicans are right, there soon will be some new names and faces to get acquainted with in the news.

Seneca county's [illegible] station has had no business since last July when it opened at an intersection where accidents had been occurring at an average of one a week. The sign which told motorists the station was there for their convenience must have had something to do with it.

If President Roosevelt sticks to his policy of no political campaign for reelection, will go down [illegible] the greatest demonstration [illegible] psychologist.

Nip and Tuck Race Seen in Iowa

Majority Either Way Not Expected To Go Over 50,000, Polls Give Lead To Landon

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

[illegible] public [illegible] oral

[illegible] for the [illegible] the [illegible] in the [illegible] cities [illegible] Republicans [illegible] into third [illegible] The [illegible] is to be distinguished from [illegible] but in Iowa the Landon [illegible] is progressive [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Roosevelt. In fact the Landon speeches have just about obliterated the details of the agricultural controversy and placed both nominees on a parity as dealing with the same objectives.

* * *

With the agricultural issue [illegible] neutralized, the Republicans expect to make gains. They believe that when all other things are equal the farmers of the state will [illegible] according to other issues that appeal to them, particularly the issue made by the Canadian reciprocity treaty. In other words, the tariff.

The situation has hardly crystallized as yet, notwithstanding the active campaign that has been made by both sides. The forthcoming speeches by former Governor Lowden of Illinois are awaited with much interest. Mr. Lowden has a big following among Iowa farmers. He is believed to be the man on whom Governor Landon is leaning most heavily for advice on the farm problem.

The closeness of the contest in Iowa is not borne out by the polls, so many of which give Mr. Landon a decided lead. But while polls are a subject of much discussion, hardly any of them has included as yet a large enough cross-section of Iowa to be conclusive.

One thing is certain. Mr. Landon is much stronger in Iowa than was Mr. Hoover four years ago. Likewise the Roosevelt administration has come in for a great deal of criticism because of its spending policy, which means that there has been much talk about the waste of public funds. Even farmers who have received AAA benefits are reported to have developed doubts as to the wisdom of the policy, especially because of the [illegible] regulatory processes that accompanied the scheme.

* * *

On the whole, Iowa may be regarded as a pivotal state. In fact as much as any other in the middle west, because this year as goes Iowa so goes Minnesota and South Dakota and Southern Illinois. This agricultural belt has never been devoid of Democrats, even in 1920 and 1924 and 1928, but the balance of power is held this year by about 10 per cent of the total vote in the rural counties. Thus in Iowa in 1932 the rural areas shifted from a 60 per cent Republican vote to a 40 per cent Democratic vote. To put it another way, the Democrats started with a base of 40 per cent and added 20 per cent to their totals. A shift of 10 per cent from four years ago therefore would make the race even. There is reason to believe that a considerable shift has occurred, but the puzzle revolves around the size of that shift.

Governor Landon had the edge to lay because of the impressive speeches he has made in the state. Whether he will retain that advantage depends to some extent on how he tackles issues other than the agricultural problem and what effect his campaign nationally has in the next couple weeks in persuading the Republicans to go back to their party. For while Iowa is basically an agricultural state it is also interested in whether the constitutional integrity of the American form of government is to be maintained as well as its financial solvency.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—President Roosevelt has not yet begun to play some of the high cards in his campaign sleeve. He is not advertising them even to all his political intimates. Some who have seen him with his coat off lately, however, have had a swift glance at an ace they did not suspect was in the deck. You may not believe it either when you see it played some time before election. Incredible as it sounds, it is a balanced budget for next year.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau has said there would be no news on the budget before Nov. 3, but he may not have known or cared to discuss what is going on now in budget-making. Acting Budget Director Bell has made no announcements, but he has been working for some months on estimates. There are good reasons for believing that he can now produce figures indicating an approximate balance based as much on expectations of increasing revenue as upon a decrease in expenditures.

His work has progressed so far that one of the leading bond market advisory services sent to its banker clients a few days ago the confidential suggestion that a balanced 1938 budget is a reasonable expectation.

Estimating

The budget figures relate to such far distant economic conditions that they are difficult for the government actuaries to calculate, but there is nothing to stop them from taking an optimistic view. It is almost impossible to guess accurately the extent to which better business will boost tax receipts for the year beginning next July 1, now nine months off. It is equally difficult to calculate relief demands. But the law requires a budget to be submitted to Congress in January and it will be possible for the President to offer rather definite guesses before Nov. 3 if he chooses.

Some unofficial experts used a pencil on the problem the other day and came out with only a $300,000,000 deficit for 1938 by cutting relief one third, increasing revenue 12 per cent, deducting the bonus expenditure of the current year and neglecting to consider the probable heavy requirements of social security. Beyond these considerations is the broad field of recoverable government assets which have been used this year to help in cutting the deficit in half without decreasing spending.

Thus it can be done, and it probably will be.

Gamble

The criticism most frequently made of the new deal by new dealers is that Mr. Roosevelt allows his associates to make rash and reckless statements which pop into their extensive crania.

As Mr. Roosevelt is so liberal with his help, probably no action will be taken against Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor for his last gamble with fate. Mr. O'Connor made the statement that if no banks failed within the ensuing two weeks he would take the air on a national hookup Sept. 30 and announce that the first year of American history had passed without a bank failure.

The reckless chance which Mr. O'Connor took may be gauged accurately by a fact he failed to mention, namely that he is the only man who can close the banks. While he could hardly be expected to ruin his own record in the last two weeks of September, you must consider the hazard that he might die and Mr. Roosevelt might appoint another comptroller who would close a bank. That is the way it could happen.

If Mr. O'Connor keeps his health three more days and makes his broadcast, you may expect some heckler to ask how many weak banks he is carrying in his pocket, or how many should have been closed which still remain open.

Honorable Mentions

Some people who know Prof. Tugwell have mentioned in private that Agriculture Secretary Wallace may eventually become president of the University of Wisconsin. Newsmen thought they had something in that idea until they approached people who know Wallace. His friends said they were fairly sure Wallace would not leave his government job, but that they had heard the story mentioned in respect to Tugwell.

There is therefore no good reason why anyone should mention either suggestion.

Wallace is anchored in agriculture and what seems to be in the wind for Tugwell is control of the new farm tenant bill in which Mr. Roosevelt took such interest recently. It will give him something to do in place of his Resettlement Administration, which now needs only a night watchman.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—In that interlude of wavering chimera between sound sleep and wide awakeness there is for me always a cascade of thoughts. Tumbling out of the past in a backwash of memory such as: The dignified editor showing us through his Glasgow plant and remarking they once used one of our streaks—Mutt and Jeff.

I like to swim up to this rosy borderland with that pink flush that presages sunrise. In such languor all the world is gorgeously tinted. Out of the fading loam comes a chuckle: Victor Moore's super idiocy. Removing his neck from the guillotine and climbing up to repair the suddenly stuck head chopper. A George S. Kaufman touch.

A flash of recollecting recalls George Fitch, the Galesburg, Ill., humorist with a Coolidge-like face. He authored the Siwash stories and died all too young. Davenport's cartoons of Big Business riding gloatingly on parade floats borne by spindle-legged starvelings representing child labor.

The drummer called to the pool hall to behold the wizardry of the local artist. To whom he said: "You're wasting time around here." The vaudeville contortionist in a frog suit. The opera house curtains and its watery bit of Venice framed in butcher shop ads, the actor's peephole puncturing the gondolier's rib.

* * *

Whirling prisms of thought. How they flicker in kaleidoscopic blur in early hours. Snatches of yesterday. A happy Irishman, a bartender in East Liverpool, O., who was wont to say for no reason as he raked in change: "And she never smiled again." Prophetic, I wonder. Those 15 minutes for dinner at the Santa Fe stop with the Senegambian beating the whey out of a huge gong to direct passengers to lunch rooms. Everybody bolting in wild panic. While a benign tooth-picking conductor intoned: "Don't hurry—plenty of time."

* * *

Floats up an ancient story that still winnows a smile. The fellow who walked up to Louis Mann in front of the Astor, picked threads and stuff from his lapels and said: "Have you a five you can spare?" Barked Mann: "No, and you can put those things back." A scene from a show at Heuck's Over the Rhine in Cincinnati. Sophisticated woman in long black velvet drawing the curtain on a mad wine-woman-and-song scene and murmuring to the sod buster she has in tow with all dramatic stops out: "And this, my friend, is Boheeemiah." Quickly: "If this is Bohemia I'm going back to Ottumwa." And how we roared!

* * *

The first faint rumble deep in the Park avenue canyon. The cab line forming on the Waldorf's hips. One wonders where the street sprinklers of yesteryear? And all those industrious people we once saw keeping things up—setting posts, trimming hedges, painting back porches, etc. Thousands of newcomers will begin arriving in an hour or so for their first glimpse and perhaps grapple with the big town. Thousands who signed off down country to take a city office job or chase a career. Thousands who will never find desired companionship and who will eventually wonder whether to go on grimly or take a what's-the-use attitude. New recruits for the Lonesome Hearts Club!

* * *

Thought is thought, though, this Dawn in the offing. The giant metropolis dropping its nocturnal cloak and shadow boxing with another day. Man will take no count before the sun dips. Memory: That fellow at the movies with a bag of peanuts and the sniffles. The magic of far away names—Singapore, Madagascar, Zanzibar. Small town delight: The fish story tellers at the hall's one hose. What whoppers!

BOSTON, Sept. 26—The volume of business in wool on the Boston market during the past week was very moderate and rather scattered. Some houses received a fair call while others transacted very little business.

Territory wools had some activity in most grades and prices were strong on medium and steady to firm on fine wools. Medium grade fleeces were moderately active but the finer grades were quiet. FRANC'S SHRINK BOOSTS STOCKS

American Can, U. S. Steel, Utilities, Rails and Oils Move Forward.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 — The stock market took the news of French franc devaluation and the tri-power monetary equilibrium agreement bullishly today and prices pushed up fractions to a point or more.

At an active opening gains were recorded by American Can, Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, International Nickel, N. Y. Central, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Western Union, Douglas Aircraft and Consolidated Edison.

Pending further clarification of the international currency problem, many traders indicated their intention of clinging to the sidelines. At the same time domestic business developments continued to exert a cheerful influence marketwise.

Before the start of dealings on the stock exchange no foreign exchange transactions had been reported. Both London and Paris markets were closed. Dealings in French dollar loans were light, but the government 7's on a single sale lost 16½ points at 140.

WHEAT PRICES IGNORE FRANC'S DEVALUATION

Traders Look Upon Paris Developments as Bullish in Long Run.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—Regardless of devaluation of the French franc, Chicago wheat prices closed today without any particular nervousness.

Action of France in debasing her currency was looked upon by most grain traders as bullish in the long run as to all commodities. Dwindling of wheat supplies in exporting countries received increasing attention.

No month end fireworks in September corn contracts were witnessed.

Wheat closed steady, at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝ higher, Sept. 1.17¾@⅞, Dec. 1.15⅝@¾, corn ¼ off to ⅝ up, Sept. 1.16@1.16½, Dec. 95⅝@⅞, oats ⅛@⅜ advanced and barley up 5@ cents. With provisions unchanged to 20 cents bulge.

COUNTY'S CCC QUOTA FIXED

25 Will Get Opportunity To Enroll Oct. 1; Others May Be Added Later.

Marion county's quota for a new enlistment in the federal government's civilian conservation corps was announced today by F. S. Burns, deputy CCC enrolling agent. Twenty-five youths will be given opportunity to join the CCC Oct. 1, with a possibility that other enrollments will be held later in the month.

The only restrictions on those who wish to enroll is that they are from 17 to 28 years of age, residents of the county, and members of relief or near relief families. However, if others wish to join, they may do so by assigning $25 of their pay each month to families listed on relief rolls.

Boys who go to camp are expected to sign up for a period of six months. They are paid $30 a month plus clothing, food and lodging, of which $25 is allotted to a needy dependent who is receiving some kind of public assistance such as direct relief, old age pension, mother's pension, WPA or rural resettlement work if the need of the family is such as to require additional assistance.

The youths will leave Oct. 1 for Mansfield, where they will undergo physical examinations before departing for camp. Applicants who are just 17 years of age have been requested to obtain a birth certificate to verify their age. Enrollment may be made at the office of Mr. Burns in the relief headquarter at 131 South Prospect street.

FINAL DAY BRINGS LARGE CROWD FOR HARNESS EVENTS

ond by passing the field on the second half-mile. Malcolm D had gained the lead but lost step on the home stretch and trailed Calumet Fisher to the wire.

Protest Heat

The final heat was open to controversy as W. H. Scott, the eighth horse at the start, got away ahead of the field and headed the pack until the home stretch. Calumet Fisher, Smiler Gratton and Ruth S followed in that order as they rounded the last turn and the heat winner succeeded in passing W. H. Scott down the stretch. Adams driving Malcolm D and McMillen driving Jerry Cowl returned to the judges stand to protest the start, but the heat stood.

In the 2:18 pace with its $250 purse, it was Bernice Wilson all the way. Starting from fourth position in the initial heat the sorrel mare driven by Shilling, took the first two heats in 2:10 and 2:13¼ and finished fourth in the final heat which was clocked at 2:09¾ by Symbol Alice, the winner. In the first heat Bernice Wilson took the lead on the back stretch and held it to the finish with the five others scrapping for the other money places, Abbie Scotland came up from fourth at the half to place second followed by Hunter, Maxine and Symbol Alice.

The second heat was Bernice Wilson's all the way from the start. The horses went into the curve with Symbol Alice trailing the leader and finished in the same order except for Hunter which moved from fifth at the half to third at the wire. The leaders were in a neck and neck race and the heat was timed at 2:13¼.

Wins at Wire

Bernice Wilson held the first position through the half-mile of the final heat but it remained for Symbol Alice to mar a possible record for the race. The latter horse stepped up from fourth at the start to second on the first stretch and made a successful bid for the top spot by passing Bernice Wilson in the closing strides under the wire.

Anna Lee won the first heat of the Markert & Lewis stake of $400 for the two-year-old pace. It was in the first quarter that the black mare from the Orene stables at Wilmington, O., rounded the leaders and remained in the lead to the finish. Peter Patch started good and held second at the turn of the half but dropped to last place behind Volo Gratan, Clifford James and Rehm.

Volo Gratan turned the final heat in 2:12¼ to win by beating out Anna Lee after the Wilmington horse had paced the field through the first half-mile. The heat winner was third in the first lap stretch and moved up on the final curve to head the field home with Rehm, Anna Lee and Pete Patch following.

BAND ON PARADE AS NEW SUITS ARRIVE

Harding Musicians March Through Business District Before Football Game

Color flashed in the business district and on the Harding stadium field today as the Harding High school band went through its paces in new cherry red and black uniforms

Todays appearance at the Harding Mt Gilead football game was the first for the band under Drum Major Richard Clarke a senior and with the four year old mascot Lowell Jones son of L G Jones public school music supervisor and Mrs Jones Homer L Huffman who is charge of the instrumental music in the schools was in uniform and marched with the band The mascot marching ahead of the drum major was a miniature of the band members except that he wore white duck trousers instead of black whipcord
